Andrew J. Peterson represents clients in estate planning and administration matters. Andrew guides individuals and families in transferring their wealth in a tax-efficient and effective manner to future generations and charitable partners. With a background in drafting wills, trusts, and other essential documents, Andrew excels in providing tailored solutions to his clients' needs.

In addition to estate planning and administration, his practice extends to real estate and business transactions. His down-to-earth approach ensures that clients receive clear, effective, and practical legal advice, delivered in a manner that is easy to understand.

Prior to joining Larkin Hoffman, Andrew gained valuable experience at a boutique estate planning firm in Minneapolis. As a graduate of the University of Minnesota Law School, Andrew was actively involved in moot court and served as a judicial extern to the Honorable Kathleen Sanberg at the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in the District of Minnesota.

Beyond his legal endeavors, Andrew enjoys golfing, hosting a fantasy football podcast, and reading during his free time.
